the view of translation as a socially regulated activity has opened up a broad field of research in the last few years this volume deals with central questions of the new domain and aims to contribute to the conceptualisation of a general sociology of translation interdisciplinary in approach it discusses the role of major representatives of sociology like pierre bourdieu bruno latour bernard lahire anthony giddens or niklas luhmann in establishing a theoretical framework for a sociology of translation drawing on methodologies from sociology and integrating them into translation studies the book questions some of the established categories in this discipline and calls for a redefinition of long assumed principles the contributions show the social involvement of translation in various fields and focus especially on the translator s position in an emerging sociology of translation bourdieu s influence in conceptualising this new sub discipline methodological questions and a sociologically oriented meta discussion of translation studies

wie sieht die realität der translation in den geistes und sozialwissenschaften aus um diese frage zu beantworten bedarf es vieler weiterer fragen nach welchen kriterien werden texte ausgewählt und übersetzt wer ist daran beteiligt was passiert mit den texten bei der Übertragung aus einem sprach und kulturraum in den anderen mit welchen spezifischen problemen werden die akteure der translation konfrontiert wie wirken sich die unterschiede in den geistes und sozialwissenschaftlichen diskursen und kulturen darauf aus anhand zweier fallstudien geht irina pohlan diesen fragen nach und formuliert antworten die in der zusammenschau den status quo des Übersetzens und dolmetschens in den geistes und sozialwissenschaften dokumentieren der fokus liegt dabei auf dem wechselseitigen transfer zwischen russland und deutschland this book explores the implications of pierre bourdieu s sociology of cultural production for the study of translation as a socio cultural activity bourdieu s work has continued to inspire research on translation in the last few years though without a detailed large scale investigation that tests the viability of his conceptual tools and methodological assumptions with focus on the arabic translations of shakespeare s tragedies in egypt this book offers a detailed analysis of the theory of fields of cultural production with the purpose of providing a fresh perspective on the genesis and development of drama translation in arabic the different cases of the arabic translations of hamlet macbeth king lear and othello lend themselves to sociological analysis due to the complex socio cultural dynamics that conditioned the translation decisions made by translators theatre directors actors actresses and publishers in challenging the mainstream history of shakespeare translation into arabic which is mainly premised on the linguistic proximity between source and target texts this book attempts a social history of the arabic shakespeare which takes as its foundational assumption the fact that translation is a socially situated phenomenon that is only fully appreciated in its socio cultural milieu through a detailed discussion of the production dissemination and consumption of the arabic translations of shakespeare s tragedies bourdieu in translation studies marks a significant contribution to both sociology of translation and the cultural history of modern egypt

bourdieu s key concepts of habitus field and capital have been adopted or adapted to elaborate the social and cultural nature of translation or interpreting activity to locate this activity within social structures and social institutions and to analyse the cultural historical and political specificity of translation and interpreting practices this special issue of the translator explores the emergence and subsequent development of bourdieu s work within translation and interpreting studies contributors to this volume offer their critical assessment of the force of bourdieu s arguments in clarifying strengthening or challenging existing analyses of the role of the social in translation and interpreting studies the topics include a consideration of the role of habitus and symbolic linguistic capital in translation and interpreting within the legal field a critical evaluation of how educational sign language interpreters serve to reinforce the continuation of exclusionary practices toward deaf pupils within mainstream schooling a critique of the dominant historiography of the early translations of shakespeare s drama in egypt an exploration of bourdieu s concepts of habitus capital and illusio in relation to the formation of the literary field in france and america in the 19th and 20th century a re evaluation of the potential for a theoretical alliance between latour s actor network theory and bourdieu s reflexive sociology and a discussion of the ethnographic epistemological foundations of bourdieu s work with reference to political asylum procedures in belgium from varying perspectives the papers in this volume demonstrate the contribution of bourdieu s work toward the continued elaboration of sociological perspectives within translation and interpreting studies increasing attention has been paid to the agency of translators and interpreters as well as to the social factors that permeate acts of translation and interpreting in addition agency and social factors are discussed in more interdisciplinary terms currently the focus is not only on translators or interpreters i e the exploration of their inter intra social agency and identity construction or on their activities and the consequences thereof but also on other phenomena such as the displacement of texts and people and issues of access and linguicism the displacement of texts whether written or oral across time and space as well as the geographic displacement of people has encouraged researchers in translation and interpreting studies to consider issues related to translation and interpreting through the lens of the sociology of language sociolinguistics and historiography researchers have employed a myriad of theoretical and methodological lenses borrowed from other disciplines in the humanities and social sciences therefore the interdisciplinarity of translation and interpreting studies is more evident now than ever before this volume originally published as a special issue of translation and interpreting studies issue 7 2 2012 is a perfect example of such interdisciplinarity reflecting the shift that has occurred in translation and interpreting studies around the world over the last 30 years the present book is a bold attempt at revealing the complex and diversified nature of the field of translated literature in turkey during a period of radical socio political change on the broad level it investigates the implications of the political transformation experienced in turkey after the proclamation of the republic for the cultural and literary fields including the field of translated literature on a more specific level it holds translation under focus and explores the discourse formed on translation and translators while it also traces the norms not observed by translators throughout the 1920s 1950s in two case studies the findings of the study suggest that the concepts of translation both affected and were affected by cultural processes in the society including ideological and poetological ones and that there was no uniform way of defining or carrying out translations during the period under study the findings also point at the segmentation of readership in early republican turkey and conclude that the political and poetological factors governing the production and reception of translations varied for different segments of readers the notion of systems has helped revolutionize translation studies since the 1970s as a key part of many descriptive approaches it has broken with the prescriptive focus on what translation should be encouraging researchers to ask what translation does in specific cultural settings from his privileged position as a direct participant in these developments theo hermans explains how contemporary descriptive approaches came about what the basic ideas were and how those ideas have evolved over time his discussion addresses the fundamental problems of translation norms equivalence polysystems and social systems covering not only the work of levý holmes even zohar toury lefevere lambert van leuven zwart dhulst and others but also giving special attention to recent contributions derived from pierre bourdieu and niklas luhmann an added focus on practical questions of how to investigate translation problems of definition description assessment of readerships etc makes this book essential reading for graduate students and indeed any researchers in the field hermans account of descriptive translation studies is both informed and critical at the same time he demonstrates the strength of the basic concepts which have shown considerable vitality in their evolution and adaptation to the debates of the present day

this volume claims that interdisciplinarity and translation constitute the two main challenges for cultural studies today these conceptual issues inter and trans express themselves within specific historical and cultural contexts interdisciplinarity is linked with the ongoing process of the institutionalisation of cultural studies in national academies but also increasingly internationally comparatively and to a certain extent even globally cf cultural studies of global culture translation concerns cultural studies both as an object or product and as a subject or producer of translation processes cultural studies is the result of translation translates and is being translated the essays in this volume therefore relate these various ongoing cultural linguistic and institutional translation processes to political and ethical issues of internationalisation and globalisation the contributions draw their originality and strength from strategically crossing disciplinary and national boundaries they deliberately ignore the question of what may be proper to cultural studies and instead problematise the notions of propriety and belonging as a reading practice cultural studies in these pages is performed through adaptations and combinations of theory and critical practice the volume should be of interest to everyone concerned with cultural studies role in promoting intellectual debate

within an increasingly international and globalised public sphere to go beyond the work of a leading intellectual is rarely an unambiguous tribute however when gideon toury founded descriptive translation studies as a research based discipline he laid down precisely that intellectual challenge not just to describe translation but to explain it through reference to wider relations that call offers at once a common base an open and multidirectional ambition and many good reasons for unambiguous tribute the authors brought together in this volume include key players in translation studies who have responded to toury s challenge in one way or another their diverse contributions address issues such as the sociology of translators contemporary changes in intercultural relations the fundamental problem of defining translations the nature of explanation and case studies including pseudotranslation in renaissance italy sherlock holmes in turkey and the coffee and sugar economy in brazil all acknowledge translation studies as a research based space for conceptual coherence and creativity all seek to explain as well as describe in this sense we believe that toury s call has been answered beyond expectations

this book is a collection of selected articles based on talks given by established academics and translators as well as younger researchers at the third postgraduate symposium organized by the school of literature and creative writing at the university of east anglia uk the objective of the third postgraduate translation symposium at the university of east anglia was to explore the current relevance of theory to the practice of translation this volume builds on the key ideas and discussion that arose from the symposium bringing together amongst others the current debates concerning the complex relationship between theory and practice in the field of translation studies taking into consideration a wide range of perspectives both modern and traditional a broad cross section of research exploring the present relevance of translation theory to practice is presented by many of the individual contributors to this volume these papers provide both current theoretical insights into the relevance of theory to translation and also in some examples offer first hand experiences of applying appropriate strategies and methods to the practice and description of translation

the cross linguistic and cross cultural practice of translation is a field of rapidly growing international importance world renowned experts offer new and multidisciplinary insights on this subject viewing translation as social action and intercultural communication and as a phenomenon of languages in contact and a socio cognitive process the dao of translation sets up an east west dialogue on the nature of language and translation and specifically on the unknown forces that shape the act of translation to that end it mobilizes two radically different readings of the daodejing formerly romanized as the tao te ching the traditional mystical reading according to which the dao is a mysterious force that cannot be known and a more recent reading put forward by sinologists roger t ames and david l hall to the effect that the dao is simply the way things happen key to ames and hall's reading is that what makes the dao seem both powerful and mysterious is that it channels habit into action or what the author calls social ecologies or icoses the author puts daoism and ancient confucianism into dialogue with nineteenth century western theorists of the sign charles sanders peirce and ferdinand de saussure and their followers in order to develop an icotic understanding of the tensions between habit and surprise in the activity of translating the dao of translation will interest linguists and translation scholars this book will also engage researchers of ancient chinese philosophy and provide western scholars with a thought provoking cross examination of eastern and western perspectives in the years between 1848 and 1918 the habsburg empire was an intensely pluricultural space that brought together numerous nationalities under constantly changing and contested linguistic regimes the multifaceted forms of translation and interpreting marked by national struggles and extensive multilingualism played a crucial role in constructing cultures within the habsburg space this book traces translation and interpreting practices in the empire s administration courts and diplomatic service and takes account of the habitualized translation carried out in everyday life it then details the flows of translation among the habsburg crownlands and between these and other european languages with a special focus on italian german exchange applying a broad concept of cultural translation and working with sociological tools the book addresses the mechanisms by which translation and interpreting constructs cultures and delineates a model of the habsburg monarchy s pluricultural space of communication that is also applicable to other multilingual settings published with the support of the austrian science fund fwf  width 300

Unlocking the Mystery: How Many Feet Are in 7 Meters?

Have you ever stood gazing at a towering building and wondered about its exact height, or perhaps tried to visualize the length of a seemingly endless swimming pool? Often, these measurements are given in meters, a unit commonly used in many parts of the world. But what if you're more comfortable thinking in feet? Understanding the conversion between meters and feet is key to bridging this gap and gaining a clearer understanding of distances and dimensions around us. This article will explore the conversion of 7 meters to feet, delving into the underlying principles and offering practical applications.

Understanding the Metric and Imperial Systems

Before we dive into the conversion, it's crucial to understand the two systems of measurement involved: the metric system and the imperial system. The metric system, also known as the International System of Units (SI), is a decimal system based on multiples of 10. Its primary unit of length is the meter (m). The imperial system, predominantly used in the United States, employs units like feet (ft), yards, and miles. These units don't share a simple decimal relationship, making conversions slightly more complex.

The Conversion Factor: The Bridge Between Meters and Feet

The key to converting between meters and feet lies in the conversion factor. One meter is approximately equal to 3.28084 feet. This factor acts as the bridge between the two systems, allowing us to transform measurements from one to the other. This isn't an exact conversion; it's a close approximation due to the historical development of the two systems.

Calculating 7 Meters to Feet

Now, let's calculate how many feet are in 7 meters. To do this, we simply multiply the number of meters by the conversion factor: 7 meters $\times 3.28084 \text{ feet/meter} \approx 22.96588 \text{ feet}$. Therefore, 7 meters is approximately equal to 22.97 feet (rounding to two decimal places for practical purposes).

Real-Life Applications of Meter-to-Foot Conversions

Understanding this conversion has numerous practical applications in everyday life and various professions. Consider these examples:

Construction and Engineering: Architects, engineers, and construction workers frequently work with both metric and imperial measurements. Converting between these systems is essential for accurate planning and execution of projects, ensuring compatibility between different components and materials sourced from various regions.

Sports and Athletics: Many international sporting events use metric measurements, while some national competitions still use imperial units. Converting distances in track and field, swimming, and other sports is critical for fair comparison and accurate record-keeping.

Travel and Navigation: Global Positioning Systems (GPS) often provide distances in meters, but many maps and road signs utilize feet or miles. Knowing how to convert between these units is useful for estimating travel times and distances.

Manufacturing and Industry: Many manufacturing processes involve components with dimensions specified in either metric or imperial units. Conversion is crucial for ensuring proper fit and function within a global supply chain.

Beyond the Basics: Understanding Precision and Significant Figures

While our calculation provided a precise answer, it's important to consider the context of the measurement. In many real-world situations, extreme precision isn't necessary. For example, if you're estimating the height of a tree, a rounded figure of 23 feet is likely sufficient. However, in engineering or scientific contexts, greater accuracy might be required, utilizing more decimal places or employing more sophisticated conversion methods. The concept of significant figures plays a crucial role in determining the appropriate level of precision in any calculation.

Summary: Bridging the Measurement Gap

Converting 7 meters to feet, approximately 22.97 feet, highlights the importance of understanding the relationship between the metric and imperial systems. This conversion is a fundamental skill with broad applications in various fields, from construction and engineering to sports and everyday life. Remembering the conversion factor (approximately 3.28 feet per meter) is a valuable tool for navigating measurements in a globally interconnected world. Always consider the context of your measurements and choose an appropriate level of precision in your calculations.

FAQs: Addressing Common Questions

1. Is the conversion factor 3.28084 feet per meter exact? No, it's an approximation. The exact conversion involves more decimal places, but for most practical purposes, 3.28084 is sufficiently accurate. 2. How can I convert feet to meters? To convert feet to meters, divide the number of feet by the conversion factor (approximately 3.28084 feet/meter). 3. Are there online tools for metric–imperial conversions? Yes, numerous online converters are available, offering quick and accurate conversions between various units. 4. What is the difference between a meter and a yard? One meter is approximately 1.0936 yards. A yard is slightly shorter than a meter. 5. Why are two different measurement systems still in use? The coexistence of metric and imperial systems is a result of historical development and adoption patterns. While the metric system is the internationally preferred standard, the imperial system remains prevalent in certain regions, particularly the United States.
