street in new orleans which is named elysian fields and runs between the l n traces and the river the section is poor but unlike corresponding sections in other american cities it has a raffish charm the houses are mostly white frame weathered grey with rickety outside stairs and galleries and quaintly ornamented gables this building contains two flats upstairs and down faded white stairs ascend to the entrances of both it is first dark of an evening early in may the sky that shows around the dim white building is a peculiarly tender blue almost a turquoise which invests the scene with a kind of lyricism and gracefully attenuates the atmosphere of decay you can almost feel the warm breath of the brown river beyond the river warehouses with their faint redolences of bananas and coffee a corresponding air is evoked by the music of negro entertainers at a barroom around the corner in this part of new orleans you are practically always just around the corner or a few doors down the street from a tinny piano being played with the infatuated fluency of brown fingers this blue piano expresses the spirit of the life which goes on here a streetcar named desire by tennessee williams about the author thomas lanier williams iii better known by the nickname tennessee williams was a major american playwright of the twentieth century who received many of the top theatrical awards for his work he moved to new orleans in 1939 and changed his name to tennessee the state of his father s birth raised in st louis missouri after years of obscurity at age 33 he became famous with the success of the glass menagerie 1944 in new york city this play closely reflected his own unhappy family background it was the first of a string of successes including a streetcar named desire 1947 cat on a hot tin roof 1955 sweet bird of youth 1959 and the night of the iguana 1961 with his later work he attempted a new style that did not appeal to audiences his drama a streetcar named desire is often numbered on short lists of the finest american plays of the 20th century alongside eugene o neill s long day s journey into night and arthur miller s death of a salesman much of williams most acclaimed work has been adapted for the cinema he also wrote short stories poetry essays and a volume of memoirs in 1979 four years before his death williams was inducted into the american theater hall of fame a streetcar named desire by tennessee williams summary of the book tennessee williams s a streetcar named desire takes place in a vibrant lower class neighborhood in new orleans blanche dubois an aging southern belle from a plantation in laurel alabama arrives to visit her pregnant sister stella upon meeting her sister blanche claims that she has lost the mansion in which she and her sister grew up and she has been making ends meet as a schoolteacher she also claims that she is visiting to calm her nerves stella s husband stanley is suspicious of blanche and as a result of blanche s genteel behavior stanley believes that she thinks of herself as above them he hates her flirtatious and pretentious manner and he insists that she share any money from the proceeds of the mansion with stella and himself but blanche shows him that she lost the house to the bank and that she is nearly broke one evening stella and blanche return from a night out while stanley and his friends are playing poker one of stanley s friends mitch finds himself sexually and emotionally attracted to blanche and attempts several times to speak with her he tells her about how he is taking care of his sick mother and they

share a cigarette when blanche turns on a radio and begins dancing with mitch stanley becomes enraged at the interruptions to the poker game and blanche s flirtatious attitude and he throws the radio out the window stella seeing stanley s drunken and inappropriate reaction insists that they end the poker game but stanley takes her offstage and beats her stella forgives him while blanche shares a cigarette with mitch and their interest in one another grows the next day blanche tries to convince stella to leave stanley but stella claims that blanche is overreacting as blanche begins explaining how vulgar and brutish stanley is he walks into the next room and overhears blanche denigrating him after she is finished stanley pretends not to have heard them talking but when stella runs to his arms to hug him he stares at blanche challengingly after this interaction blanche begins writing a letter to a former boyfriend shep huntleigh who has made millions in the oil business she believes he will help them escape but stella refuses and blanche stops writing the letter stanley comes back home and mentions that he spoke to his auto parts supplier shaw who regularly travels through laurel shaw has told him that blanche used to stay in the ill reputed flamingo hotel blanche is shaken by this but denies it blanche plans to go on a date with mitch and she reveals to stella that she feels insecure about her age and hopes that mitch will not judge her because she does not plan to have sex with him stella and stanley go on a date while blanche is waiting for mitch to arrive as she is waiting alone a young boy comes collecting money for the local paper blanche does not have any money but she flirts with him and kisses him on the mouth before sending him away mitch arrives with a bouquet of flowers and they go on their date after several more dates mitch is concerned that he has not been entertaining to blanche but her mind is elsewhere she has been thinking about her late husband who killed himself after blanche discovered him having sex with another man mitch tells blanche that his mother is dying and they decide that they are meant to be together because they both understand loneliness after this date ends it is blanche s birthday and stella is setting up decorations while blanche bathes stanley comes home from the auto shop and tells stella that he has learned about blanche s past she had a reputation for being a loose woman in laurel and she was fired for having an affair with one of her students he has informed mitch and also purchased blanche a birthday present a one way bus ticket back to laurel during the birthday party conversation around the table is awkward and mitch does not arrive when stella criticizes stanley s eating habits he throws his plates to the floor and leaves when he comes back he gives stella the bus ticket back to laurel and she becomes sick running to the bathroom gagging stella is angry with stanley for his insensitive treatment of blanche stella begins to go into labor and stanley takes her to the hospital later that night blanche is drunk and mitch arrives to break up with her she admits to the fact that she was promiscuous in laurel and was fired from her teaching job for seducing one of her students mitch though disgusted that she has lied to him attempts to have sex with her she screams fire as a way to draw attention to the flat and mitch runs out the door stanley comes back from the hospital saying that stella will be at the hospital until morning he is in high spirits because of his son s birth blanche drunk tells him that she will be leaving soon because shep

her former suitor has agreed to go travelling with her she also tells him that she has broken up with mitch stanley knows that she is lying about shep and he knows that mitch broke up with her in light of these lies he begins insulting blanche for her holier than thou attitude and makes fun of her appearance he advances toward her and when blanche attempts to defend herself with a broken bottle he grabs her arms and rapes her in the final scene of the play blanche is preparing to leave having convinced herself that shep is going to come to take her away in reality she is to be sent to a psychiatric institution stella admits that blanche told her about the rape but stella refuses to believe her sister thinking it an imagined story brought on by her sister's insanity when the doctor and nurse come to take blanche away she initially resists but eventually accepts defeat though stella has doubts about her sister's fate and begins crying she holds her newborn child as stanley comforts her a streetcar named desire by tennessee williams

alex north s a streetcar named desire a film score guide examines the acclaimed score for elia kazan s much celebrated adaptation of tennessee williams s a streetcar named desire 1951 situating the score within the context of alex north s life and career the book begins with an overview of north s musical training and his works up to his first scores for hollywood in 1950 demonstrating how his experience in writing music for stage concert hall dance and documentaries each contributed to the skills necessary for film composition annette davison uses examples from north s film career to identify and describe his scoring techniques using manuscript and archival research davison explores both the play's debut stage production and the film's production process with a particular emphasis on the genesis and development of the music heard in the film considering the influence and changes imposed by the film's studio warner bros the production code administration and the catholic legion of decency on the film davison explores the impact of these changes on the interpretation of this finely balanced drama comparing the different versions of the film and its scores the book concludes with a full and detailed analysis of the jazz inflected score taking a holistic approach and using both musicology and film studies to investigate the ways it gives a dynamic shape to the film as a whole

this work is both a meditation on the theory of literary biography and an examination of the relationship between tennessee williams and the texts attributed to him

twentieth century marks a watershed in human history altering significantly the social moral psychological and spiritual dimensions of life reflecting these changes truthfully literature in english written in disparate segments of the globe england america and the commonwealth comes to have a significant convergence of concerns and a not too divergent choice of artistic strategies the present volume of twentieth century literature in english comprises original research articles laying bare hitherto unexplored dimensions of the literature of the age along these lines prefaced by incisive insights into theoretical aspects viz the modern literary scenario modernism and post modernism the volume includes comprehensive critiques of the works of t s eliot james joyce paul mark scott graham greene anthony burgess tennessee williams saul bellow farhana sheikh bharati mukherjee ruth praver jhabwala bhabani bhattacharya manohar malgonkar nayantara sahgal v s naipaul r k narayan wole soyinka george lamming and christopher j koch incorporating insightful analysis of works old and new often from a comparative perspective involving scrutiny of cliched responses the present volume affords a view of the latest research in the field

this volume introduces ways to use film to ease the difficulty of introducing complex literary theories to students by coupling works of literature with attendant films and with critical essays the author provides instructors with accessible avenues for encouraging classroom discussion literary theories covered in depth are psychoanalytic criticism the awakening and film adaptations the end of august and grand isle cultural criticism a streetcar named desire and its 1951 film version and thematic criticism ode intimations of immortality from recollections of early childhood and the film adaptation splendor in the grass other theories are used to clarify and support those referred to above the work then includes a survey of the image patterns into which film adaptation theories can be grouped and how these theories relate to traditional literary theory

The Curious Case of King Kong and the Empire State Building: Deconstructing an Iconic Climb

King Kong's ascent of the Empire State Building in the 1933 film remains one of cinema's most enduring and iconic images. But beyond the spectacle of a giant ape scaling a skyscraper, lies a surprisingly complex question: why did he do it? This seemingly straightforward question opens a fascinating exploration into character motivation, narrative structure, and the symbolic power of the image itself. This article delves into the various contributing factors, addressing common misconceptions and offering a multi-faceted answer.

I. The Immediate Trigger: Ann Darrow and the Pursuit of Love

The most immediate and obvious reason for Kong's climb is his desperate pursuit of Ann Darrow. Kidnapped and taken to Skull Island, Ann becomes the object of Kong's affection – a connection born partly from primal instinct and partly from a genuine, albeit unconventional, bond. When Ann is taken away from him, his reaction is purely instinctual: he follows. The Empire State Building, in this context, represents the final obstacle in his desperate attempt to retrieve her. This is a clear case of cause and effect: Ann's removal --> Kong's pursuit --> Kong's climb. Step-by-step breakdown: 1. Attachment: Kong forms an emotional bond with Ann. 2. Separation: Ann is forcefully taken away from him. 3. Instinctual Response: Driven by love and protection, Kong pursues Ann. 4. Environmental Constraint: The Empire State Building, representing human encroachment, becomes the final barrier. This basic narrative structure explains the what of Kong's actions, but not necessarily the why on a deeper level.

II. The Symbolic Significance of the Building: A Confrontation with Civilization

The Empire State Building itself holds significant symbolic weight. In 1933, it represented the pinnacle of human ambition and technological achievement. By climbing it, Kong is not merely chasing Ann; he's also challenging the very edifice of human civilization. This represents a thematic conflict present throughout the film: the clash between nature and the increasingly encroaching world of humans. The building becomes a metaphor for human dominance, a stark contrast to Kong's wild, untamed nature. His climb can be interpreted as an act of defiance, a statement about the power of nature even in the face of overwhelming human progress. This understanding provides a layer of subtext to his actions, moving beyond simple pursuit.

III. The Role of Fear and Aggression: A Reaction to Threat

Kong's aggression isn't limited to pursuing Ann. He's also reacting to the constant barrage of attacks from airplanes and the relentless pursuit by humans. His climb could be viewed as a final, desperate act of self-preservation, a last stand against the forces attempting to subdue him. He's not just chasing love; he's also defending himself from an overwhelming threat. This adds another dimension to his motivation, highlighting the element of survival in his actions. Example: The relentless attacks from the planes push Kong to act more aggressively, culminating in his iconic climb as a form of defensive action.

IV. The Unintentional Narrative Symbolism: A Tragic Hero's Final Act

Finally, Kong's climb can be interpreted as a tragic, albeit unintentional, symbolic act. He's a creature of immense power and innocence, ultimately misunderstood and destroyed by the very civilization he inadvertently challenges. His climb is the apex of his struggle, the last defiant act of a creature facing inevitable defeat. This adds a layer of pathos to his actions, making his struggle relatable despite his monstrous appearance.

Conclusion: A Multifaceted Motivation

Kong's climb of the Empire State Building is not simply a chase scene; it's a complex culmination of multiple motivations. His pursuit of Ann, his defiance of human civilization, his reaction to threat, and the ultimately tragic nature of his situation all contribute to this iconic moment. The film subtly blends these elements, creating a powerful and enduring image that resonates with audiences even today.

FAQs

1. Was the Empire State Building the only possible building for the climax? While the Empire State Building's symbolic power was crucial, any tall, imposing structure could have served as the backdrop. However, the Empire State Building's prominence in 1933 made it the perfect representation of human ambition. 2. Could Kong have simply flown to Ann? This is a common question. The film establishes Kong as a powerful but not necessarily flying creature. The filmmakers chose a climb to emphasize the physical struggle and the visual spectacle. 3. Did Kong understand the significance of the Empire State Building? No, Kong's actions are driven by instinct and emotion, not conscious awareness of the building's symbolic meaning. The significance is layered onto his actions by the narrative and the audience's understanding. 4. How did the filmmakers decide on the Empire State

Building? The choice was likely a combination of the building's recency (it was a relatively new landmark), its height (providing dramatic visual opportunities), and its symbolic representation of human achievement at the time. 5. Does Kong's climb have any deeper allegorical meanings beyond the film? Yes, the scene can be interpreted as a broader commentary on the relationship between humanity and nature, the exploitation of the natural world, and the consequences of unchecked ambition. The scene continues to spark discussions about environmentalism and the human impact on the planet.
