contemporary trends of urbanization in developing countries illustrate a distinctive depiction compared to earlier process in developed countries evers and korff 2000 gulger 1988 gulger 1996 little 1974 industrialization and economic growth are almost always accompanied by urbanization davis 1965 world bank 2000

however urbanization in developing regions is a phenomenon ascribed by a low level of economic development contradictory to the case of accelerated urbanization that began in western europe and north america in some part of the world and particularly in sub saharan africa cities have been growing without a concomitant expansion of economic activity the process of urbanization in africa is mostly embedded on the migration trend which is rapid and greater in volume consequently its obstructive consequences are higher than those of industrial countries at the time they were rapidly urbanized hardiman and midley 1989 un habitat 2003b

this book highlights the positive achievements that imperial ethiopia made in its journey towards urbanization into the modern era and undertakes a critical assessment of the economic political and social impediments that prevented the country from transitioning into a truly fully fledged modern urbanization it provides a comprehensive history of the growth of towns between 1887 and 1974 it is organized chronologically regionally and thematically divided into three distinct time periods during which ethiopian towns saw progresses and exposures to limited modern urban features first during 1887 1936 the country saw the creation and growth of a national capital 1887 that coordinated the country s economic and political activities and facilitated the growth of other towns in the empire it introduced new towns the railway modern schools and health centers rudimentary factories were established in addis ababa and dire dawa along with motor cars and modern roads which increased trade between cities the next era was the italian occupation from 1936 1941 which shook the pre existing process of urban growth by introducing a modern european style urbanization system ethiopian cities saw a qualitatively different way of urban growth in both form and content the italians introduced modern economic and physical planning administration and internal organization people were introduced to modern life in urban areas exposed to modern wage labor system and thus moved to towns to take advantage of the opportunity the italian occupation left behind many features of modern urbanization and this influenced population exposed to modern consumptive tastes was determined to retain what the italians introduced finally the post italian period saw a new era of urban growth due to economic and organizational problems resulting from destructions caused by the war the process of urban growth was slowed down in the early 1940s although the government did not introduce a clear urban policy in the immediate aftermath of the second world war towns continued to grow progressively from the early 1950s to 1974

this report takes a spatial approach to study ethiopia s rural development strategies it highlights the need to develop stronger and more functional linkages between rural and urban areas as such the development of intermediary cities and small urban centres provides large scope for inclusive rural transformation the report is the result of rigorous analysis and extensive consultations with national and international stakeholders it identifies some of the key challenges faced by rural areas and provides a series of recommendations to enhance ethiopia s rural development strategies ethiopia is the darling of development economists since 2005 the country s economic growth rate has consistently been over the 10 mark ethiopia is also a regional superpower with political influence across east africa and the horn furthermore the african union has its headquarters in the capital addis ababa which further underscores the country s growing international profile on top of everything since 1995 ethiopia has a federal constitution explicitly committed to granting political autonomy to all ethnic groups within the country ethiopia s federalism has also direct relevance to the country s neighbours eritrea somalia kenya south sudan and djibouti who have ethnic kin across the borders with ethiopia yet despite the generous promises to the country s ethnic groups stated in the constitution not everything is well as marked by the recent unrest throughout various regions of the country the federal constitution s promises and the reality do not always perfectly align but there is a shortage of even handed scholarly analyses of this complex country and in particular its unique federal system based on chapters focusing on different parts of the federal system the collection takes stock of the last 20 years and distils lessons and insights for a broader international comparative readership the chapters originally published in ethnopolitics and regional federal studies from a war torn and famine plagued country at the beginning of the 1990s ethiopia is today emerging as one of the fastest growing economies in africa growth in ethiopia has surpassed that of every other sub saharan country over the past decade and is forecast by the international monetary fund to exceed 8 percent over the next two years the government has set its eyes on transforming the country into a middle income country by 2025 and into a leading manufacturing hub in africa the oxford handbook of the ethiopian economy studies this country s unique model of development where the state plays a central role and where a successful industrialization drive has challenged the long held erroneous assumption that industrial policy will never work in poor african countries while much of the volume is focused on post 1991 economic development policy and strategy the analysis is set against the background of the long history of ethiopia and more specifically on the imperial period that ended in 1974 the socialist development experiment of the derg regime between 1974 and 1991 and the policies and strategies of the current eprdf government that assumed power in 1991 including a range of contributions from both academic and professional standpoints this volume is a key reference work on the economy of ethiopia

the international development policy agenda is currently dominated by the theme of poverty reduction the theme has been vigorously pursued by multilateral donors such as the united nations development programme undp world bank and others their assistance has also been tuned to pro poor policy frameworks poverty however is understood mainly to be a rural phenomenon this is based on the fact that rural poverty is widespread and pervasive and affects a large segment of the population since the majority of people in less developed countries reside in rural areas there is however an increasing trend of urban growth and with it urban poverty all over the world in ethiopia urban poverty in comparison to rural poverty and national level poverty has increased over time this has necessitated urban poverty reduction as an important area of intervention in urban development and planning the objective of this study is to understand the livelihood situations of the poor in big and small towns and identify the gaps and linkages between the livelihood requirements of the poor and policies at municipal level the study was conducted in nine cities and towns of the country including the capital city

ethiopia is clearly one of the most important countries in africa first of all with about 75 million people it is the third most populous country in africa second it is very strategically located in the horn of africa and bordering eritrea sudan kenya and somalia with some of whom it has touchy and sometimes worse relations yet its capital addis ababa is the headquarters of the african union the prime meeting place for africa s leaders so if things went poorly in ethiopia this would not be good for africa and for a long time this was the case with internal disruption rife until it was literally suppressed under the strong rule of the recently deceased meles zenawi the historical dictionary of ethiopia second edition covers the history of ethiopia through a chronology an introductory essay appendixes and an extensive bibliography the dictionary section has several hundred cross referenced entries on important personalities politics economy foreign relations religion and culture this book is an excellent access point for students researchers and anyone wanting to know more about ethiopia

the 1991 government change in ethiopia ushered in a centralised system of governance aimed to bring about harmony and cooperation between different groups and to promote local self rule it has proceeded in two phases 1991 2001 centred on creating and powering national regional governments termed mid level decentralisation further powers were devolved in 2001 through the district level decentralization program and urban management profram this volume brings together studies by the forum for social studies and others with the aim of identifying knowledge gaps for further research and to generate debate on the issues in ethiopia the study is in two parts a literature review seeking to document existing studies and highlight research gaps and field work which involved a rapid assessment of eight weredas and two kifle ketemas in addis ababa the other three studies are synopses of master theses submitted to the institute of regional and local development studies of addis ababa university urbanization is happening fast in the developing world and especially so in sub saharan africa where growth rates of cities are among the highest in the world while cities and in particular secondary towns where most of the urban population in sub saharan africa resides affect agricultural practices in their rural hinterlands this relationship is not well understood to fill this gap we develop a conceptual model to analyze how farmers proximity to cities of different sizes affects agricultural prices and intensification of farming we then test these predictions using large scale survey data from producers of teff a major staple crop in ethiopia relying on unique data on transport costs and road networks and implementing an array of econometric models we find that agricultural price behavior and intensification is determined by proximity to a city and the type of city while proximity to cities has a strong positive effect on agricultural output prices and on uptake of modern inputs and yields on farms the effects on prices and intensification measures are lower for farmers in the rural hinterlands of secondary towns compared to primate cities

african legislatures remain understudied yet democratisation development and peacebuilding all depend on these key political institutions this book provides an in depth analysis of ethiopia s parliament a country of key political and strategic importance to the whole region in 1931 ethiopia s monarchical government introduced a system of parliamentary democracy with seemingly contradictory objectives it wanted to legitimize its rule in a changing world and also needed to provide a respectable retirement vocation as senators and deputies to sections of the aristocracy it ousted from power this paradox of recognizing the parliament as essential to modern governance yet deliberately seeking weak institutions that are unable or unwilling to challenge those in power continues to haunt the parliament to this day ethiopia continues to struggle to maintain political stability and the separation of power between government and parliament and a system of checks and balances are yet to substantially flourish drawing on extensive original data gathered from interviews and surveys this book investigates the legal and practical status of federal representative institutions in ethiopia from 1931 up to and including 2021 it delves into the rules and routines of parliament its contextually and historically grounded culture of representation and the techniques of manoeuvring executive bureaucracies the book also aims to understand the extent of civil dis engagement and the perceptions and role of citizens in shaping parliament and how the mandates and functions of individual mps are also determined by cultural and socio economic factors such as gender population inequality and conflict this book s in depth and original analysis will be of interest to researchers across african studies politics development and governance the open access version of this book available at taylorfrancis.com has been made available under a creative commons attribution non commercial no derivatives cc by nc nd 4 0 license

due to the rapid growth of cities in africa many more farmers are now living in rural hinterlands in relatively close proximity to cities where many provide food to urban residents however empirical evidence on how urbanization affects these farmers is scarce to fill this gap this paper explores the relationship between proximity to a city and the production behavior of rural staple crop producers in particular we analyze data from teff producing farmers in major producing areas around addis ababa the ethiopian capital we find that farmers located closer to addis ababa face higher wages and land rental prices and because they receive higher teff prices they have better incentives to intensify production moreover we observe that modern input use land and labor productivity and profitability in teff production improve with urban proximity this urban proximity has a strong and significant effect on these aspects of teff production possibly related to the use of more formal factor markets lower transaction costs in crop production and marketing and better access to information in contrast we do not find a strong and positive relationship between rural population density increases and agricultural transformation increased population density seems to lead to immiserizing effects in these settings our results show that urban proximity should be considered as an important determinant of the process of agricultural intensification and transformation in developing countries

From Kilograms to Pounds: A Comprehensive Guide

This article provides a detailed explanation of how to convert 102 kilograms (kg) to pounds (lbs), a frequently encountered conversion in various contexts, from everyday life to scientific applications. We will explore the conversion factor, the calculation process, and practical applications, ensuring a thorough understanding of this essential unit conversion. We'll also delve into some common misconceptions and frequently asked questions.

Understanding the Metric and Imperial Systems

Before we begin the conversion, it's crucial to understand the two systems of measurement involved: the metric system and the imperial system. The metric system, based on powers of ten, is a decimal system primarily used globally for scientific measurements and in most parts of the world for everyday use. Its fundamental unit of mass is the kilogram (kg). The imperial system, prevalent in the United States and a few other countries, uses pounds (lbs) as its unit of mass (weight). These systems use different base units, requiring a conversion factor for accurate translations between them.

The Conversion Factor: Kilograms to Pounds

The key to converting kilograms to pounds lies in the conversion factor. One kilogram is approximately equal to 2.20462 pounds. This factor is essential for all kilogram-to-pound conversions. While approximate, this conversion factor provides sufficient accuracy for most purposes. More precise conversion factors exist, but for everyday applications, this level of precision is usually adequate. Note that this factor implies that one pound is equal to approximately 0.453592 kilograms. We will use the more common 2.20462 factor in our calculations.

Calculating 102 Kilograms to Pounds

To convert 102 kilograms to pounds, we simply multiply the number of kilograms by the conversion factor: $102 \text{ kg} \times 2.20462 \text{ lbs/kg} \approx 224.8 \text{ lbs}$. Therefore, 102 kilograms is approximately equal to 224.8 pounds. The slight variation from a whole number is due to the inherent approximation in the conversion factor. This result can be used in various contexts, from checking the weight of luggage for air travel to determining the weight of a specific object.

Practical Applications of the Conversion

Understanding the kilogram-to-pound conversion is crucial in numerous scenarios. For example: International Shipping: When shipping goods internationally, understanding weight conversions is essential to ensure accurate labeling and avoid penalties. Incorrect weight declaration can lead to delays or extra charges. Medical Applications: In medical contexts, accurate weight measurements are paramount for medication dosages and general health assessments. Converting between kilograms and pounds ensures consistency in patient records across different countries. Cooking and Baking: Many recipes use either metric or imperial units. Converting between these units is necessary for accurate measurements and successful outcomes. Fitness and Health: Weight monitoring is a key aspect of fitness and health. Being able to convert between kilograms and pounds allows for seamless tracking of progress regardless of the scale's unit of measurement. Engineering and Construction: In construction and engineering, accurate weight calculations are crucial for structural integrity and safety. Converting between kilograms and pounds is necessary when working with materials from different manufacturers or regions using different measurement systems.

Common Misconceptions and Potential Errors

A common misconception is to assume that a simple multiplication or division by a round number like 2 will suffice. This leads to significant inaccuracies. Using the precise conversion factor (2.20462) is crucial for achieving accurate results. Another potential error involves confusing mass (kilograms) with weight (Newtons), especially in physics-related calculations. Remember, kilogram is a unit of mass, and pound is a unit of weight, although they are often used interchangeably in everyday conversation.

Summary

Converting 102 kilograms to pounds involves multiplying the weight in kilograms by the conversion factor of approximately 2.20462 lbs/kg. This results in approximately 224.8 pounds. Understanding this conversion is critical across numerous applications, from international shipping to healthcare and cooking. Accuracy in this conversion is paramount to avoid errors and ensure proper measurements in various situations. Always remember to use the appropriate conversion factor and avoid simplifying the calculation to maintain accuracy.

Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs)

1. Is the conversion factor 2.20462 exact? No, it's an approximation. A more precise value exists, but 2.20462 provides sufficient accuracy for most everyday applications. 2. Can I convert pounds to kilograms using the same factor? Yes, simply divide the weight in pounds by 2.20462 to obtain the weight in kilograms. 3. Why are there different units for measuring weight? Historically, different systems of measurement evolved independently, leading to the coexistence of metric and imperial units. 4. What if I need a more precise conversion? For very high precision applications, you should use a more precise conversion factor or a specialized conversion tool. 5. Are there online converters available? Yes, many online converters readily provide accurate conversions between kilograms and pounds. These are useful for quick and convenient conversions.
